

The Adventures of Harry Avocado
By Scott Little

Once upon a time there lived an avocado named Harry. He was very happy hanging on his tree and soaking in the sun, which helped him grow. He really liked it when the sprinklers would water him and his family.

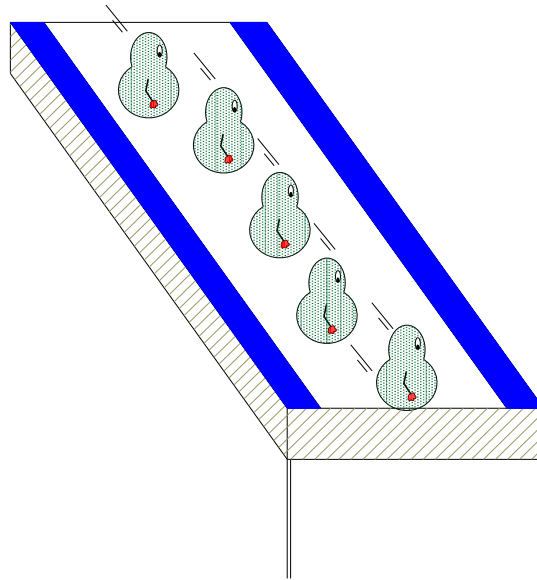

Then one morning, something strange happened to Harry Avocado, something which would change his life forever.

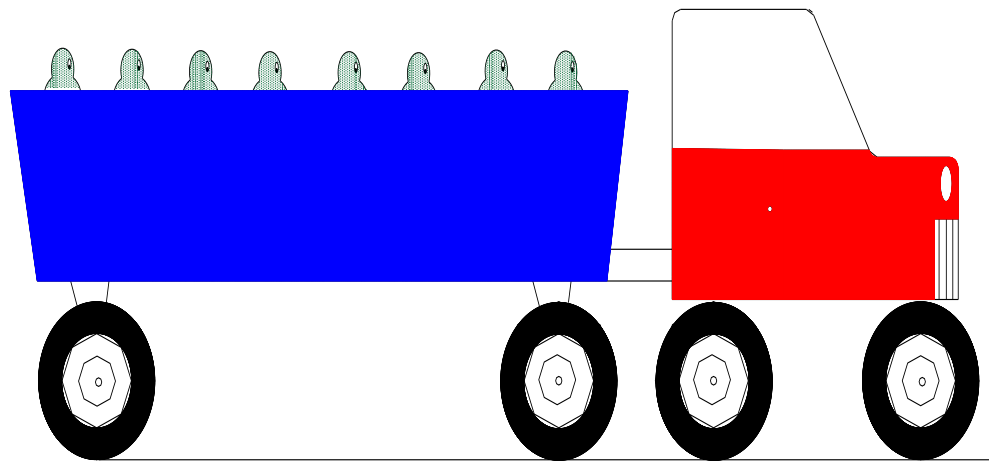

A large hand came out of no where, grabbed him, then pulled him off his tree. He was put in a box with other avocados. Harry was scared, because he had never been without his family.

After this, harry went on a wild ride down a long belt.

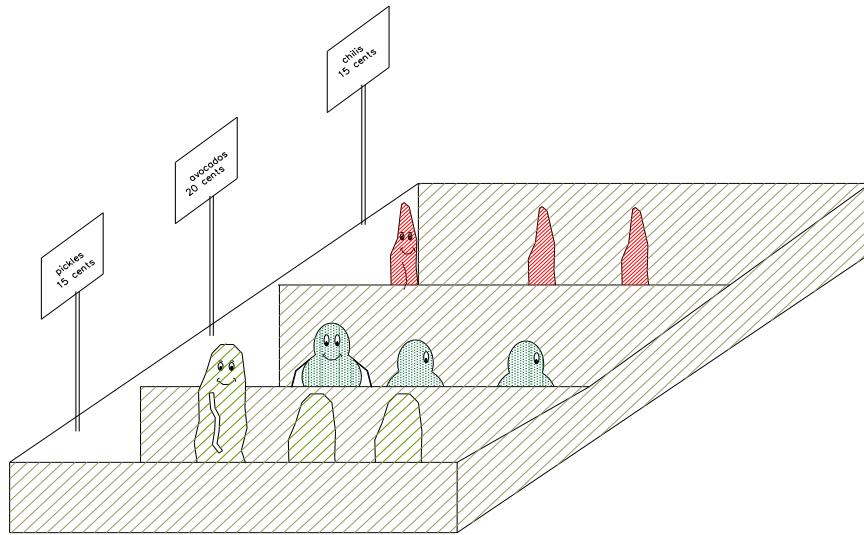

He was put into a big truck. He did not know where he was going.

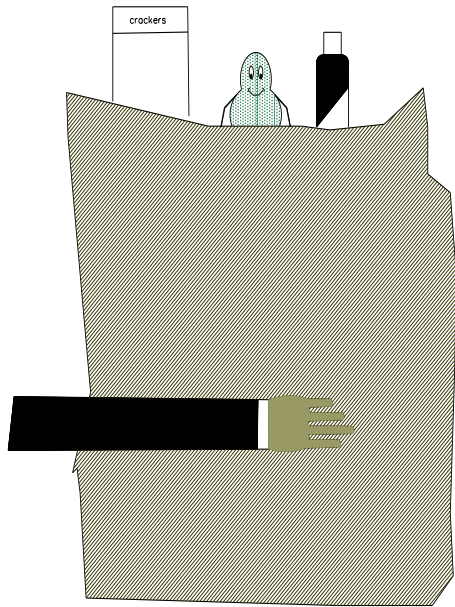

Finally, Harry ended up in a large building. There were many other fruits and vegetables there. There were also many boxes in shelves.

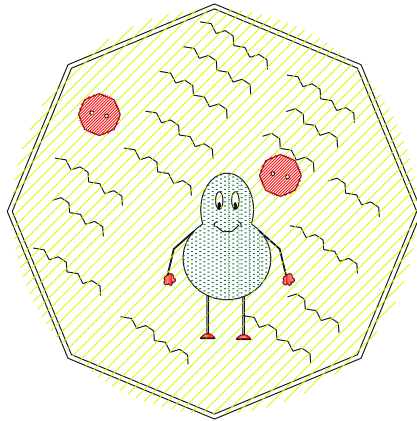

Harry was in box next to some pickles on one side, and chilies on the other. He made friends with a pickle named Nathan Pickle and a chili named Isaiah Chili.

After awhile, another hand came up and grabbed him. It put him in a paper bag, harry then went on another ride until he was taken out.

The hand laid him down on a bed of lettuce and put some strange liquid on him.

Harry then realized that this was he was meant to do. He was going to pass on the energy he got from the sun to someone else.

He was truly happy and he realized he was important. He knew this energy would go from him to a person, then to another tree or animal. He was part of that circle.

He waited for his chance to serve.
